

CALL FOR PAPERS FOR GRADUATE STUDENT PANEL

CURRENT RESEARCH ON JOHN CALVIN AND REFORMED TRADITIONS

Submission Deadline: October 1, 2018

The Calvin Studies Society invites current and recent doctoral students to submit paper abstracts for a graduate student panel to be held at the next Calvin Studies Colloquium, April 11-13, 2019 at Trinity Christian College. The topic of the Colloquium is “Calvin and the Old Testament.”

We invite proposals for papers reflecting current research by doctoral students or those awarded a Ph.D. in the past two years (2017-2018) on any topic related to Calvin and Calvinism. Abstracts should be no longer than 300 words and should state the main research question to be addressed in the paper. Presented papers should be 10–12 pages long; presenters will be given 20 minutes each. Please submit your paper title and abstract along with your name, e-mail address, telephone number, dissertation title/topic, graduate institution, name of doctoral advisor, and CV to Dr. Yudha Thianto, Vice President of the Board of the Society, at yudha.thianto@trnty.edu.

The Society will cover registration and housing costs for selected panel presenters.

The primary purpose of the Calvin Studies Society is to engage in and promote the study of the thought, life, and times of John Calvin. The Society also focuses on other figures and subjects related to the Reformed movement of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Information about the Society can be found at <http://www.calvinstudiessociety.org>
